NEW YORKERS OFF TO SEE FIGHT

VICTIM OF PLOT, SAYS O.M. CARTER

Charges Gen. Otis and Attorney-General Griggs with Deep Conspiracy.

COURT MARTIAL BIASED.

Captain Who Served Sentence as Embezzler Tells of Alleged Conferences.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Charges of conspiracy among army officers made by Oberlin M. Carter, who was acquitted of embezzlement of $100,000 from the Government, enjoyed the proceedings before Special Examiner Wyman to-day. In reply to questions by Assistant United States Attorney-General Erwin, Carter asserted that the finding of the court-martial which declared him guilty was the result of a conspiracy among the officers constituting the court-martial.

"I was condemned and sentenced to prison on secret testimony at a hearing where neither myself nor my attorney was allowed to be," said Carter. "That is why I was insistent on obtaining a trial in a court of justice, where I could confront my accusers and summon witnesses."

"If I could have met my father-in-law, R. F. McQuinn, in open court, I know I would have been acquitted. It was he who was a feeble old man, and the Government was using him to sign the statement which is now used as evidence."

"Why should the Government give you another trial, for a military court martial after three months investigation had found you guilty, and you were serving the sentence in prison?" asked Gen. Erwin.

"Because I never had a fair trial," showed Capt. Carter. "The investigation by the court martial was an infamous farce. Gen. Otis, the president of the court martial, was found one night in the office of the prosecuting attorney plotting to have me convicted."

"My attorney and myself learned that Gen. Otis left the hotel secretly to consult with the prosecuting attorney, and we found him and other members of the court-martial in secret conference with the Government attorneys. They walked a mile and then climbed five flights of stairs after the elevator stopped running, so as to be alone."

"You charge that Gen. Otis and other members of the court-martial entered into a conspiracy to send you to prison?" asked Gen. Erwin.

"I do, and I know what I am talking about," replied the witness. "I am a honest man from the top of his head to his toes. But I was advised that Attorney-General Griggs was corrupt."

"How do you know, Attorney-General Griggs was corrupt?" asked Assistant Attorney-General Erwin.

"Because a high official of the Pennsylvania Railroad repudiated one of his men," said the witness. "I saw Jerry McGovern, who was corrupt, and Mr. Griggs's character. He admitted me to have nothing to do with him."

CROWD TO SEE MILL.

Special Train Carries New York Admirers of Boxers to Quakertown.

The largest crowd of sporting men that has ever left this vicinity to witness a fight in Philadelphia left on trains this afternoon from the Pennsylvania Depot in Jersey City to see the six-round bout between Terry McGovern, the ex-featherweight champion of the world, and Tommy Murphy, the Harlem featherweight, which is to be decided in the twenty-four foot ring of the National Athletic Club at Cataraugus and Eleventh streets in that city. All told, about one thousand made the trip.

Every train that pulled out of the depot after 1 o'clock had from fifty to one hundred sporting men on it who were anxious to get to the clubhouse in time to procure the best seats before they were all sold out. Despite the fact that more than three hundred men left on the early rains, fully six hundred more left on the special train which drew out of the Pennsylvania Depot later in the evening. This delegation was composed of bookmakers, their sheet writers, runners and others who were unable to go on an earlier train.

Rush for Special Train.

This crowd came with a rush to the Cortlandt street ferry and the young men selling tickets for the train and fights saw a rushing business before the special left. On the ferry boat going over to Jersey City there were numerous arguments between the admirers of both fighters over their respective abilities. Several bets were made on the outcome of the bout at even money that either Murphy or McGovern would have his better of the encounter. Sam Harris, the former manager of Terry McGovern, offered to wager $1,000 to $1,000 that McGovern would beat Murphy before the end of the sixth round, while Al. Woods and Paddy Sullivan were also willing to make bets on the result of the fight.

Some of the prominent sporting men who made the trip to the battleground on the special train were the following: McGovern, Dick Bernard, Sam Harris, Joe Lichtenstein, Joe Lloyd, Billy Newman, Billy Cowan, Tom O'Sullivan, Paddy Sullivan, Congressman Tim Sullivan, Jim Buckley and a host of others.

Murphy and his handlers, Frank Erne, the ex-lightweight champion of the world, and Paddy Broderick, journeyed to the battleground in a motor car. Both boys looked in fine physical condition, and were confident of victory.

Murphy and his handlers, Frank Erne, the ex-lightweight champion of the world, and Paddy Broderick, journeyed to the battleground in a motor car. Both boys looked in fine physical condition, and were confident of victory.

McGovern was the first to board the train, and as soon as Murphy got into his motor car, McGovern walked into the car occupied by Murphy and the two fighters shook hands, wishing each other the best of luck. On the trip to the battleground, McGovern passed the time by playing cards and telling stories.

As soon as the train pulled into the Broad street station in Philadelphia, the fighters and their seconds went to the Hotel Scott, where rooms had been engaged for them in advance. They were to be waiting at this hotel at 12 o'clock this evening at 127 pounds. Both were already under the weight at which they are to fight. McGovern, who weighed 124 pounds, while Murphy said he weighed 123 pounds.

After weighing in, the fighters will be put to bed and take a good rest until they are called to the clubhouse to get ready for the battle. McGovern will be handled by Joe Humphreys, Charles Mayhew, Johnny Kirdick and Terry's brother, Hughie. Murphy will be handled by Joe Humphreys, Oliver, Frank Erwin, Paddy Broderick and Capen Leon. Jack McGuigan will referee the bout, and according to the articles of agreement signed by the managers of both fighters, the boys will have straight Margueta of Queensbury rules, and to protect himself at all times.

FISTIC FIGHT PUTS THE CURB IN CONFUSION

Two Mitchells Mix Up in Hot Battle in Midst of Brokers.

Alleging that W. E. Mitchell, a mining engineer and curb mining stock expert, had conspired to take and hurtful stories about the value of the properties of the Mitchell Mining Company, Harry Mitchell, brother of George Mitchell, president of the Mitchell Mining Company, to-day went to the curb market, hunted up the broker, and, according to bystanders, struck him in the face.

The opposing Mitchells, it is stated, have no family connection, but there is a connection between the affair and the recent fight in the Greene Consolidated properties.

According to Mr. A. S. Towson, of the Stock Exchange firm of Tracy & Co., President George Mitchell learned from two responsible banking houses in the Street that W. E. Mitchell had made statements to the effect that the Mitchell mines were not nearly so valuable as had been stated. Harry Mitchell, his brother, and a man of the other Mitchell's age and size, was sent down "went to the curb and hunted up W. E. Mitchell," said Mr. Towson.

"I hear that you have been telling people that the Mitchell Mining properties are not what they are represented to be," Harry said. "Have you ever been on these properties?"

"Mitchell replied that he had never been on the grounds, but had got his information from a miner who worked in the Mitchell mines."

"You are a lying scoundrel!" said Harry. "W. E. Mitchell did just what Harry Mitchell wanted him to do—he started others had not started them. Harry is waiting for the other Mitchell to come back, and he will do the same thing over when he sees W. E. Mitchell again."

George Mitchell has authorized me to state that he will sue this man Mitchell for libel."
